I've always had a deep love of kitchens and their ability to bring people together. I think these spaces should reflect their owners, and I hope people have fun mixing, matching, and playing with the colors and materials.

ABOUT THE COLLECTION

As a former editor at Architectural Digest and Elle Decor magazines, decorator, stylist, and creative consultant Parker Bowie Larson has covered the design industry for the past two decades. Now she is combining her insider market knowledge—having attended the top trade shows year after year—with her love of color. Inspired by everything from Dorothy Draper china cabinets to crown molding, Parker's goal is to combine an interesting mix of styles and materials to realize a more whimsical approach to traditional cabinetry. As such, each design is also available in a glass version, allowing for creativity and flexibility in how beloved tabletop items are displayed. The wide-ranging palette showcases her affection for blue as well as unexpected pops of color and even some moodier shades that evoke old English manors. From classic beadboard to more intricate two-tone panels, there's a style for every taste—and every room, whether it's the kitchen, pantry, bar, mudroom, or laundry room.
